

GOV. COX SHARERS GENTEEL TRADITION

Probably the Crudest, Directest, Simplest Man Ever Nominated for President

ASSUMES COCKSURE AIR By CLINTON W. GILBERT Staff Correspondent of Evening Public Ledger

Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co. Columbus, O., Aug. 16.—Governor Cox scored an initial success in opening his campaign in Wheeling.

It was not a big success, but it was an unmistakable success. He presented his two issues—the prompt ratification of the League of Nations and the need of a progressive administration—in a way to catch the crowd.

A campaign such as Cox has started upon may not overcome the advantage which the Republican party has, but it is one to be reckoned with.

The newspaper Cox has built up in Dayton has been a popular newspaper with the economy-of-attention style which has been introduced into recent journalism.

That is Cox. He is probably the crudest, directest, simplest man who ever ran for the presidency in this country.

He borrows his illustrations from the life of his auditors. When he was addressing the contributors to the Republican campaign fund of such purposes he said: "They want to be understood upon the American Government."

And he pronounced it "underholt" with a "t," which is the way his hearers doubtless pronounced it.

Coles Says Prominent Men Seek Place on Committee to Aid G. O. P. Ticket

FOLWELL TO RAISE FUNDS Prominent men representing many activities have expressed a desire to become members of the campaign committee which will be organized by George W. Coles, chairman of the Town Meeting party.

Mr. Folwell will have sole charge of the collection of funds for the senatorial campaign and presidential tickets in Pennsylvania outside of Philadelphia.

Mr. Folwell will confer with Senator Penrose. The collection of funds will be carried out in line with suggestion made by Senator Harding, who wishes to make the campaign a national one.
